PARK(ing) Day

PARK(ing) Day 2016, Columbia

While PARK(ing) Day may be temporary, the possibility it offers has lasting effects and is helping to shift the way streets are perceived and utilized

Here's some ideas!

an art exhibit

a solar panel demonstration

a DIY lemonade stand

a public park

a free health clinic

an ecology center

a public back porch

an urban farming display

an outdoor classroom

a fingerpainting studio

WHEN: Friday September 18, 2020

What is PARK(ing) Day?

PARK(ing) Day is an event held every September that activates parking spaces for creative experimentation, political, and cultural expression. It is open-source urban design that is accessible to all!

Where to place it? Find a parking spot in a location where people will find and interact with it. Consider what public services or amenities are lacking in the area around your site.
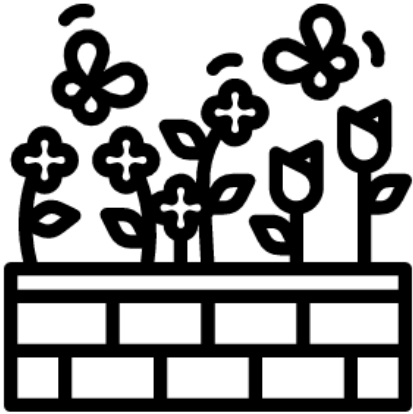

PARK(ing) Day 2020, Columbia

Please continue to practice social distancing!

Source: "The Park(ing) Day Manual" by REBAR
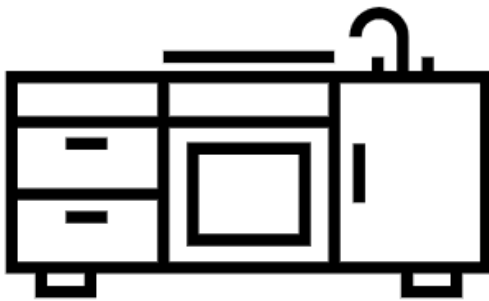

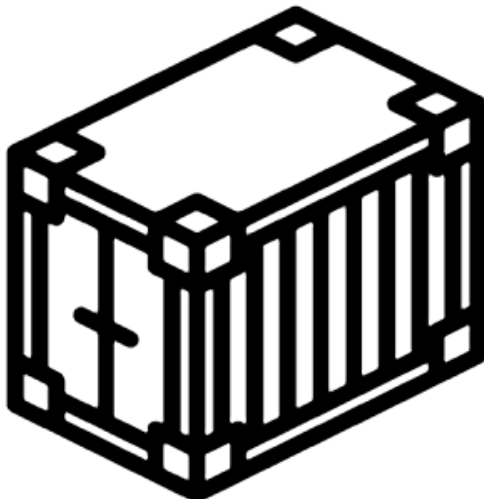

PARK(ing) Day

How big is a parking space?

162 sq ft

A backyard garden: 162 sq ft

A small kitchen: 162 sq ft

What else is 162 sq ft?

A shipping container: 162 sq ft

A master bedroom: 162 sq ft

It's time to rethink the way streets are used and to re-imagine the possibilities of the urban landscape!

Source: "The Park(ing) Day Manual" by REBAR